The theoretical part is based on the basic theories of marketing, including the basic elements of the marketing communication mix. One part of it is also devoted to tourism. The analytical part characterizes a selected Ukrainian destination – the Lviv region. It is characterized mainly by secondary data. The tools of marketing communication are supplemented by basic marketing analyses and questionnaire surveys. The design part contains the recommendations of using communication tools.

Some final recommendations are not based on previous analyses. The conclusions of the presented work do not fully indicate its practical use and to whom the presented results are intended.

At the defence I require the answer to following questions:
