Other comments or suggestions:

The thesis aimed to study traditional ecological knowledge of Miskitu people in one community in Nicaragua regarding the interactions with surrounding mangrove forest. The study should provide the information on recently maintained ethnobotanical and traditional ecological knowledge and reflect their implications for mangrove forest conservation and management.

This thesis I have not approved for submission last year because of the low quality. So it is resubmitted this year. Some improvements have been made in this version but by my opinion, they are still not elaborate as I have expected.

I have to say that I was not fully satisfied and many times I was even disappointed by the approach of the student to the writing of the thesis. I explained him many key issues of the thesis several times but as it is evident from the thesis that my effort was not much effective. For example I have commented and even suggested the questionnaire for the field research, however, it was not considered by the student. Therefore it was really difficult for me to make comments and suggestions to data analysis. The problem is also that not always my suggestions were considered by the student – I am not sure if the reason could be the language barrier.. However, finally I have decided to evaluate the thesis by the grade "good" and I recommend it to the defence.
